

The President's Malaria Initiative – Mekong Cross-Border Activities

June 14 2013

Thailand and Burmese public health personnel are collaborating in the border provinces to provide innovative malaria services to migrant and cross-border community, which contribute to more than 50% of malaria case burden in Thailand. The photo below shows the CAP-Malaria project, in coordination with the Ranong, Thailand Provincial Health Office, providing training on malaria diagnosis and bed net retreatment to Burmese migrant health volunteers in their native language.

Photo: Winai Kansrisupa, CAP-Malaria

Source: USAID/RDMA Office of Public Health Weekly Updates- Health Matters (June 14, 2013)